The Baltic Research Program is designed to strengthen multilateralism with a view to promoting strong and sustainable cooperation, knowledge sharing, complementarity, capacity building and competence development, future cooperation between research organizations in Norway, Iceland, Liechtenstein and the Baltic States. One of the major goals of the program is to create added value in the Baltic region, both in research and in economics, to strengthen human resources in research, involving doctoral and post-doctoral students in projects.

Collaborative research projects between three Baltic States and the donor countries Norway, Iceland and Liechtenstein will be available until April 30, 2024, with a total funding of € 22 million. Together, the program has three open competitions: the first - in Estonia in 2018, the second in Latvia in 2019 and the third in Lithuania (2019/2020).

The first call for proposals will be open until 31 January 2019, the project coordinator will be an Estonian research organization, cooperation partners from Norway, Iceland, Liechtenstein, as well as from Latvia and Lithuania.
